

Agent Management & Performance

Most call centers do a good job of understanding their customers through IVRs, CTI and CRM, then feeding the information to the ACD call routing process. Few do a good job of telling the ACD how agents are performing, in business terms. Sales close rates, customer retention, and customer satisfaction matter more in the long run than traditional ACD metrics like average handle time. Avaya's EAS and Advocate are unmatched in their ability to match callers with agents, but it takes Consistacom tools to provide the continually updated agent performance data they need.

Performance Management modeling to enhance revenue

Sophisticated call centers utilize agent performance management to reward the best agents with more of the highest value callers. Consistacom's Agent Management tools automate the ACD administration process, so the ACD starts each day knowing who the best performers are. The result is motivated agents, higher sales and happier customers.

Customers needing Agent Management are customers who:

- ▶ Struggle to keep agents in identical business functions administered the same
- ▶ Want to implement effective performance based agent management objectives
- ▶ Need to experiment with change in work flows or agent sets
- ▶ Need a history of agent changes to accurately interpret CMS reports and answer the question "what changed"
